THROUGH CHILDREN'S EYES

We, children, are experiencing great changes in our lives due to the Covid-19 pandemic. This situation affects each of us in very different ways in different cities around the world. The Metropolis Through Children's Eyes contest has been created so that we can use our drawings to show the world how we imagine a better future for our cities.

Our opinions are very important and that's why the more children who participate in this contest, the easier it will be to find a greater number of innovative solutions and ideas to build a better future for our cities.

And help the world see your Metropolis,
Through Children's Eyes!.

This contest is a way for Metropolis to better understand children's vision and expectations regarding the challenges of the future, and the innovative solutions that we can imagine to improve life in our cities by responding to the changes caused by the Covid-19 pandemic.

Artistic expression, in this case through drawing, is a tool to encourage participation and allow children who live in cities (who are part of the Metropolis network) to express our needs, dreams and ideas.

During the pandemic, our cities, our families and even ourselves have changed a lot, but we dream of a better future where we can all enjoy our metropolises while staying safe and healthy.

Take a moment to think about what creative solutions or ideas you have for your metropolis in the future, and translate them into a drawing for this contest.
